But change is afoot. In 2010, the City of Mercer Island, inspired both by European adventure playgrounds and Richard Louv's book Last Child in the Woods, opened its own "adventure playground" in a wooded acre at Deane's Children's Park, where hard-hat-wearing kids ages 4 and older use real tools and scrap wood to build forts. Now in its seventh year, the program runs three afternoons a week from late June through late August (with a more limited schedule in September).
